

GIRL DRINKS ACID AFTER A QUARREL WITH HER SISTER

Myrtle Mahorney Is Saved
By Physicians At Hospital.

Following a dispute with her sister at her home this morning, Myrtle Mahorney, twenty years old, of 3274 P street northwest, placed a vial of carbolic acid to her lips, and before members of her family could obtain possession of it had swallowed a portion of its contents.

She was hurried to Georgetown University Hospital, where, after working over the woman for more than an hour, the physicians reported that she was out of danger.

Police of the Seventh precinct who investigated the alleged attempt at suicide were told that the young woman had had a dispute with a married sister, several years older than she, and that this had prompted her to swallow the acid. The dispute, which is said to have arisen over a trivial matter, took place a few minutes after the family had finished their breakfast. Myrtle Mahorney, her father, William T. Mahorney, a former fireman, and the married sister were in the dining room at the time.

The two young women had been quarreling for several minutes when the younger sister, without giving any warning as to her intentions, picked up a small bottle containing carbolic acid, and made a dash for a stairway leading to the second floor of the house. The father of the young woman, fearing that she intended to harm herself, started after her.

Before he could obtain possession of the bottle his daughter had swallowed a portion of its contents. She was immediately carried to the lower floor of the house, and the police of the Seventh precinct notified.

The patrol wagon reached the house within a few minutes and the young woman was rushed with all possible speed to Georgetown University Hospital and taken to the operating room. The fact that but a few minutes had elapsed from the time the young woman took the acid, made it possible for the physicians to save her life, for they found that she had swallowed several ounces of the deadly fluid and was in a critical condition. After working over her for more than an hour the physicians said that she would recover.

The father of the young woman accompanied her to the hospital and remained beside her until he was assured that she was out of danger.

Connection Bridge Aid To Motorists

NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 1.—Automobilists, who have heretofore chafed under the necessity of crossing the Connecticut river by the antiquated ferry that has for so many years been in use, will be interested to learn that a magnificent new highway bridge has finally been opened between Old Saybrook and Old Lyme, near this city.

The bridge is a handsome structure and has been erected to accommodate the immense automobile traffic through New England. It serves a great amount of time and is really the most important improvement in the New York to Boston automobile road in years.

It enables motorists to make the famous half-way stop at the Mohican Hotel, New London, without inconvenience. Manager F. B. Walker, of that hotel, was one of the first to cross the bridge in a motor car.

Col. Young Soon To Appoint New Assistant

Appointment of a new assistant clerk will be announced September 15 by Col. John R. Young, clerk of the District Supreme Court, to succeed Samuel McCormack, now clerk in Criminal Court No. 1. Mr. McCormack will, on September 16, become assistant United States District Attorney, succeeding Charles H. Turner, resigned.

AMBIGUITY OF LAW PUZZLES AUDITOR

Mr. Tweedale Sends To the Comptroller Of the Treasury
For a Decision On Question Involving Status Of Two Principals Of Grade Training Schools.

Characterizing the school law as ambiguous and declaring that no more perplexing subject has ever occupied the attention of his office, Auditor Tweedale, through the Commissioners, today presented to the Comptroller of the Treasury for decision a question involving the status of two principals of grade manual training schools provided in the last District of Columbia appropriations act.

The positions are new ones, and prior to the current fiscal year have not been authorized by law in the school system.

The Board of Education, in a letter to the Auditor, states that the question has arisen as to the salary that can be assigned to the new positions. The interests of the schools, it is said, can best be promoted by the transfer or promotion of teachers now in the service of the schools, but it is not the desire of the school officials to recommend these transfers or promotions if the principals of the grade manual training schools will be allowed only the minimum salary of group A, class six, the teachers of academic and scientific subjects in the high schools.

Questions Propounded.

The following questions are propounded to the Comptroller:

"May a teacher in group A, class six, receiving a salary of $1,800, ($1,000 basic pay and $800 longevity pay), be transferred to one of the positions of principals of grade manual training schools and receive a like salary?"

"May a teacher of manual training now employed in class five, and receiving a salary of $1,000; $500 basic pay and $500 longevity pay, be promoted to one of the positions of principal of grade manual training schools and receive a salary of group A, class six, next above his present salary, namely $1,100, ($1,000 basic pay and $100 longevity pay)?"

"Would a teacher promoted or a new appointee to the position of principal of a grade manual training school be required to have the qualifications of passing the required examination and a degree from an accredited college or a graduation certificate from an accredited normal school, with five years of experience as a teacher in a high school, prescribed by the act of June 20, 1907?"

"Will the principals of grade manual training schools be entitled to the annual increase provided in group A, class six?"

"There is no expression by Congress that explains the intent of that body in assigning entirely new element in the composition of group A, class six, other than the naked statement in the 1912 appropriation act including two principals of grade manual training schools in group A, class six, at a minimum salary of $1,000 each," says Auditor Tweedale. "To establish the status of these principals as to the salary that may be paid them becomes then a matter of construction."

FUND BEING RAISED TO TRANSPORT BODY OF T. R. TIMBY HERE

Friends Of Monitor Turret
Inventor To Act, On Failure Of Navy.

Failing to obtain recognition from the navy for the achievements of the late T. R. Timby, inventor of the Monitor turret, his friends in Washington and elsewhere are raising a fund to convey his body to this city from New York aboard a chartered ship. More than $1,000 will be needed.

When Timby died a few weeks ago his admirers and others petitioned the Navy Department to lend a warship or even a collier to bring the body to Washington, where it is to have its last resting place. This petition was denied on the ground that Timby's services did not justify this distinction.

The refusal revived the controversy as to the real work of Timby. He had claimed he invented the turret which made the old Monitor the formidable foe of the Merrimack. The historical records have been drawn upon, and they seem to bear out the Timby claim. The records of the Court of Claims, which considered Timby's demand for pay for his Government work, shows Timby as the unquestioned inventor.

Rev. J. Henning Nelms Back In Pulpit Sunday

The Rev. Dr. J. Henning Nelms will preach at 11 and 1:30 o'clock services at the Episcopal Church of the Ascension Sunday for the first time since he left on his summer vacation six weeks ago. Dr. Nelms returned from Ogontz, Pa., with his family last night. He was accompanied by the Rev. E. S. Hale, assistant pastor of the Church of the Ascension, and Mrs. Hale, who also summered at Ogontz. At the morning service Sunday the full choir, which has just reorganized, will sing.

Big Dredge At Work Clearing River Channel

To help in the work of dredging the upper river channel and filling in part of Potomac flats, the Gulf and Pacific Dredging Company's dredge Pittsburg was this morning towed to an anchorage off the sea wall on the Virginia side of the river. She will begin digging tomorrow morning, and her owners' contracts call for the removal of more than 1,000,000 cubic feet of material. The job will take six weeks.
